1. [] there were Polish military barracks in Gliwice (5017N/1840E) at the corner of Kosciuszki and Zygmunta Starego streets. There were two large three story red brick buildings, a swimming pool, some sort of hut, and parade grounds. The complex was surrounded by a wooden fence about two meters high and was topped with barbed wire.
2. [] there were about 1,000 men stationed there. They wore khaki uniforms and hats with red bands. Officers with green bands on their hats lived in building B (see sketch). From time to time large numbers of WOP officers, Polish officers and some Soviet officers assembled in this building. At these times the guard strength was doubled.
